Summary

- Early this morning China's central bank raised the midpoint rate of the USD/CNY again; this time by 1.1%, to 6.401, but this measure did not weaken the yuan further.
- Greece's parliament will vote on the conditions of the third rescue package tonight.
- Europe's stock indices did not do well and US trading lacked a single direction yesterday.

The Chinese central bank's move to devalue the yuan for the second day, against its promise, brought about negative sentiment on Europe's stock markets. The Stoxx fell 2.7%, the DAX plunged 3.3%, the FSTE100 lost 1.4%, and the CAC40 dived 3.4%.

The key stock indices of the USA closed mixed: the S&P500 edged 0.1% up, the NASDAQ100 added 0.3%, the Russell shed 0.2%, and the Dow stayed flat. America's equity markets were under the influence of two opposing forces: the deceleration of China's economy is pointing to weakening, while some market players expect that the yuan's devaluation may put off the Fed's interest rate hikes to a later date, which drives stock markets higher.

In Asia' the Nikkei225 advanced 0.9%, the Hang Seng upped by 0.3%, while the SSEC inched down 0.1%.

Tonight Greece's Parliament will vote on the conditions of the third rescue package. If the set of laws is passed, the eurozone's finance ministers are to meet on Friday. However, some sources maintain that there are significant gaps between the positions of Athens and Berlin, and some conditions have not been clarified. Besides, new information came to light on the lifeline for Greece's banking system. A special account will be made to separate the EUR 10 billion earmarked for the banking system (the first tranche of the total EUR 25 billion package for banks) from the loan granted from Greece, which will not be available for Greek banks before October, when the stress test is completed.

The USD lost 1.04% against the EUR, and the JPY gained 0.8% versus the USD. After the downgrades on Tuesday and Wednesday, the People's Bank of China shifted the mid-point rate of the USD/CNY 1.1% higher again, to 6.401; yet the yuan did not fall further versus the US dollar.
