Summary

- On Friday, the leu reversed some of its earlier losses compared to the euro; the US dollar lost further ground against the shared European currency.
- Today the MoF puts up for sale RON 500 mn debt in 1.8Y bonds.
- Government budget statistics for April are expected to be revealed this week.
- The BET finished in the green, in line with its Western European peers.

After a period of heightened concerns triggered by US political uncertainties, market sentiment on global financial markets improved on Friday. Amid the more benign trading mood, Romania's leu and its peers in the CEE region reversed some of their previous losses compared to the euro. Accordingly, the leu firmed around 0.1% on Friday, ending the session slightly above 4.56. At the same time, the US dollar weakened against the common European currency, lifting the pair close to 1.12, after news from the political scene continued to weigh on the greenback.

Today the Ministry of Finance will hold an auction, in order to sell RON 500 mn debt via 1.8Y bonds. Given the large excess liquidity on the interbank market, the auction may benefit from healthy demand.

Regarding macroeconomic data releases, this week will be relatively scarce. However, it is important to add that April's government budget statistics are expected to be published by the Ministry of Finance. In March, the government execution pointed to 0.2% surplus, down from 0.4% in the same period of the previous year, as social transfers and personal expenses increased sharply, while expenditures for investments fell. On Wednesday, non-government credit and deposits statistics will see the light of day. We recall that lending activity strengthened in the first quarter of the year, also helped by the corporate segment.

The supportive sentiment in Western Europe and in the USA helped the BET index to climb almost 0.7% higher on Friday, after the majority of the BET's component went up, with the shares of Transgaz advancing the most (+2.2%). In addition, Nuclearelectrica, Conpet and OMW Petrom also registered gains between 1% and 2%.
